

Panelists at the Oct. 6 event included (from left) Michael Baum, McKay, and panel moderator Rosalie Drago at the Oct. 6 event.

Doreen Giannini

MANUFACTURING ON LI

Manufacturing on Long Island

Long Island's manufacturing sector is still strong, despite challenges from automation and offshoring.

By Doreen Giannini | Staff Writer | dgiannini@eastisland.com

Long Island's manufacturing sector is still strong, despite challenges from automation and offshoring.

By Doreen Giannini | Staff Writer | dgiannini@eastisland.com

Long Island's manufacturing sector is still strong, despite challenges from automation and offshoring.

By Doreen Giannini | Staff Writer | dgiannini@eastisland.com

Long Island's manufacturing sector is still strong, despite challenges from automation and offshoring.

By Doreen Giannini | Staff Writer | dgiannini@eastisland.com

Long Island's manufacturing sector is still strong, despite challenges from automation and offshoring.

By Doreen Giannini | Staff Writer | dgiannini@eastisland.com

Long Island's manufacturing sector is still strong, despite challenges from automation and offshoring.

By Doreen Giannini | Staff Writer | dgiannini@eastisland.com

Long Island's manufacturing sector is still strong, despite challenges from automation and offshoring.

By Doreen Giannini | Staff Writer | dgiannini@eastisland.com

Long Island's manufacturing sector is still strong, despite challenges from automation and offshoring.

By Doreen Giannini | Staff Writer | dgiannini@eastisland.com

