

Community News

SCCC awarded Johnson Controls Community College Partnership Grant

Suffolk County Community College has been awarded a Johnson Controls grant. Suffolk is one of 10 community colleges nationally to receive the grant renewed annually for up to four years.

"This Johnson Controls award advances the ability of our HVAC program to train high-need, high-skills technicians for our county workforce, and to partner with area employers where needed. Suffolk County Community College. "We're very grateful to Johnson Controls for investing in our community programs that are keeping up with cutting-edge building engineering."

The college will use its funding to invest in state-of-the-art training simulators and growth of